COOKIE POLICY

Time is Money (TiM) Application

1. What are cookies

Cookies are small text files that are stored on your device (computer, tablet, mobile phone) when you visit websites or use the Time is Money (TiM) application. They are used, among other things, to ensure the basic functionality of the website and application, to remember your preferences, and to analyze traffic.

2. Legal basis for the use of cookies

The use of strictly necessary cookies is required for the provision of information society services and is based on the legitimate interest of the operator; consent is not required in this case. The use of other (non-essential) cookies is based on your consent within the meaning of Section 89 of Act No. 127/2005 Coll., on Electronic Communications, in conjunction with the GDPR. You may withdraw your consent at any time through the consent management tool on the website or in your browser settings.

3. What types of cookies we use

3.1 Strictly necessary cookies

These cookies are essential for the proper functioning of the application. They enable, for example, logging into the user account, securing the application, or saving your settings during a session. Without these cookies, the application could not function properly.

3.2 Preference cookies

They allow your preferences (e.g. language, interface selection, display settings) to be remembered. They enable us to offer you a more comfortable and personalized user experience.

3.3 Analytical cookies

They collect anonymous information about how you use the application - e.g. which features are most frequently used, where users come from, or how much time they spend in various parts of the application. They help us improve the functionality and user-friendliness of the application.

3.4 Marketing cookies

We use these only if we have your consent. These cookies are used to display relevant advertising or to connect with social networks. Time is Money currently does not use these types of cookies as a standard; if they are deployed in the future, they will be used exclusively on the basis of your consent.

4. How to manage cookies

You can change your consent to the use of non-essential cookies at any time through the consent management tool available on the website, or you can block or delete them directly in your web browser settings. Please note that blocking certain cookies may negatively affect the functionality of the application.

5. Cookie retention period

5.1 The retention period of individual cookies varies depending on their type and purpose:

- Strictly necessary cookies (in particular login cookies) are retained for 30 days from the last login, so that the user remains logged into the application even after closing the browser. After this period, the user must log in again.
- Preference cookies are retained for 12 months from the time they are stored, or until deleted by the user in the browser settings or in the application.
- Analytical cookies are retained for 13 months from the time they are stored.
- Marketing cookies are currently not used; if deployed in the future, their retention period will be specified at the time of implementation.

5.2 After the respective period has expired, cookies are automatically deleted. The user may delete any cookie manually at any earlier time through their web browser settings or the consent management tool.

6. Further information

For more information on how we handle personal data, please see the Privacy Policy at https://www.tim.finance/privacy.

These terms and information are effective as of 10 July 2026.